Instruction: Please re attend to look at the following reported by the Tenant following new hob installation by D&S: 'Our new hob device does not have any safety mechanism which is showing that one of the zones is on or still hot after it has been used. When we shut down the zones and they are still very hot, there is no way to see or know if one of them is still hot or even if still on. This is very dangerous. Another safety issue we have relates to the hob's electricity cables. After the Hob had been replaced the builders left the apartment, few moments later we called them to come back to fix the electricity cables which were left completely loose. They used a tape which was supposed to keep them sticking to the underneath of the hob. The electricity cables didn't stick and have fell short time after and this is not safe because the electricity cables are just loose again in the kitchen' Thank you.
